

Ratna Singh

Consultant, Duke-NUS Medical School

Ratna is a consultant working with Prof. Finkelstein. As part of the QODDI team she manages and supports the planning and implementation of research undertaken by the PI.

With over 10 years of research experience and study management her credentials include stakeholder engagement, multi-site international project management, study development and monitoring and data dissemination.

Through her work at academic institutes, the World Bank and non-government organizations her work has focused on examining Asian health care systems and how these systems practically and affordably serve their populations.